

Goals for Today

1. Take the Interactive EcoSystems Final Exam.
2. Complete your reflections about the project.

What Should the Park Manager Do?

What Should the Park Manager Do?

- The final "cause" behind changes in the number of visitors to Dover Island is not straightforward - there isn't necessarily one right answer.
- If your conclusion is supported well by evidence, then you are likely to have reached a valid conclusion.
- All of the different stakeholders have different values, and may value some aspects of the ecosystem more than others. The values of the stakeholders don't necessarily line up with what you learn about the ecosystem.
- Environmental problems can be very tricky to solve - because we have to understand the science behind what is going on and we also have to consider differences in human values.
